

The Night is Moon

co-written with Kevin Keith & Jackie Kolenko*

Slipping back to that time when we loved and we lost and then we tripped and crossed that river into this life into this life again

Can't seem to understand why I tremble when you touch my hand
So afraid to look into your eyes for fear I might be mesmerized
My heart says follow through my heart says follow through
But with what I don't know
I look to the moon won't you give me a clue

The night is moon the morning will be here far too soon for me
The night is moon the night the night is moon to me

Every time I turn away something makes me want to stay
Lord, here I go again skipping into wonderland
I try to play so cool am I really just playing the fool
But I do know how I feel what I feel is real

Chorus

I don't know where it goes but the time keeps slipping by
And the colors of the sunrise say it's time to say good bye
But no matter how near or far
The stars will tell me where you are where you are...

(Musical Interlude)

You kaleidoscope and you chameleon before my eyes
And you tip and you toe so gently into my memory
But just who we were before to each other friends or lovers I can not see

Chorus
